

March 7th, 2011

To All Readers:

From: Martin A. Armstrong

I would like to take the time to thank everyone who has stood by me these many years. I have been informed that I will be released on March 8th to home confinement until September 2nd, 2011. My appeal based upon the Morrison v National Australia Bank decided by the Supreme Court that overruled the authority to claim any power over myself or Princeton Economics Int'l, Ltd maintained by the New York courts, Second Circuit, will be briefed by my lawyer Thomas Sjoblom in the DC Court of Appeals on May 27th. Hopefully, we will have a decision by the end of the year since the government has admitted on the record that nothing took place in the USA and that any accounts in the United States were UNSECURED and did not belong to any noteholder. So there seems to be no dispute on the facts. Given this state of the record, there is simply no crime. Even Goldman Sach's Alan Cohen's lies to the court in 2002 claiming there were huge losses not included in the HSBC settlement in 2002 to justify keeping me in contempt an additional 5 years when there were none and in the end the court ruled I owed no restitution, has left a bad taste in the mouths of everyone who has taken the time to read the transcripts.

I wish everyone to know that while Goldman Sachs I believe deliberately did what they did, I distinguish between personal and national injury. I have been to the dark side of the moon and returned. Yes, on the one hand I could let this dictate my remaining life and seek personal retribution. However, that offers little comfort. Instead, what I have seen is the deep corruption that lingers through the political-financial system that threatens the future of my family and friends. This, I will never forget for it has become a part of me. It has opened my eyes to things I took for granted and had never investigated.

We do not face a rich v poor confrontation in the classic sense. Merely because someone has more than another does not create evil. True evil is caused by those who seek to rig the game to ensure only they win. They crossed that dividing line distinguishing themselves from merely the rich and strolled down that path of OLIGARCHY where one is no longer concerned merely about money, but POWER. They want you to hate the rich and blame the store owner, while they pull the strings of government as if they were all marionettes in Congress. It is the OLIGARCHY that is destroying our way of life - not the rich who seek no power.

I remain, INVICTUS, unvanquished, precisely as my Scottish Coat of Arms makes clear.

Thank you for your support.